Bay-Waveland school board
adopts budget for 1990-91 year

BY TRACI BONNEY

The Bay St. Louis-Waveland School Board avoided asking for a five percent tax hike at its Monday meeting by adopting a trimmed district budget for the upcoming school year.

The district lowered its ad valorem request by about $15,000, thus preventing the need to ask Bay St. Louis and Waveland for homeowners' tax increases.

Mayor Edward A. "Eddie" Favre, who was present at the meeting, was pleased with the board's decision.

"On behalf of the people, I'd like to thank you, commend you and congratulate you on the action taken by the board," he told the members. "You've done something here tonight I've never seen done before, and I think it's great."

Another potential money-saving matter addressed at the meeting was a proposal by Mississippi Power Company to install a heat pump water heater in the Bay Middle School cafeteria kitchen.

Susan Walt of Mississippi Power told the board that this piece of equipment would pull heat out of the air in the kitchen and put it into the water supply, cooling the air and heating the water in one process.

She said this would have the effect of air conditioning the kitchen while reducing the amount of gas needed to heat the water, thus reducing the school's gas bill.

The cost of the heat pump water heater would be calculated through the "shared savings" program, where the cost is based on 75 percent of estimated savings.

The bottom line, Walt said, is that the district will pay $24,463.60, or $41 a month on the electric bill for the next five years. During that time, installation, maintenance and repair work will be the responsibility of Mississippi Power.

After hearing the proposal, the board voted to authorize Superintendent Robert Magee to review the matter and decide whether or not it will be in the district's and the school's best interest to invest in the water heater.

The board further decided that if Magee finds the water heater to be a good investment, he should proceed with the purchase of it, if the board is not required to advertise for bids on

Drowning under investigation

BY TRACI BONNEY

Local agencies are investigating the drowning death in Tawiki Park of Scott E. Bryant, 22, of Picayune.

Hancock County Sheriff Ronnie Peterson said, "A preliminary report from the autopsy done by forensic pathologist Dr. Paul McCrary indicates that drowning was the cause of death."

"Bryant had lacerations on his face, but the amount of water and sand in his lungs indicates he was conscious at the time he entered the water."

He added that alcohol and drug screens were being conducted in addition to the preliminary autopsy.

According to Peterson, Bryant's body was found at the private park off Hwy. 11 in Hancock County Wednesday morning after dragging operations were conducted in a park pond from about 8:30 to 9:30. "The body was found about 20 feet out, in deep water," Peterson said.

The sheriff's department began to investigate the incident after receiving a call Tuesday from Bryant's mother, Patricia Furr of Picayune. Concerned about her son, who had been missing since Sunday, she had gone to the park and found his wallet and cap on the bank of the pond.

Peterson added that the department has information that Bryant may have been involved in a fight prior to his death. "We plan to interview several people who were supposed to have been involved."

Peterson said the Bureau of Marine Resources and the Department of Civil Defense are also participating in the investigation.

One-car accident kills one, injures one

A one-car accident on Interstate 10 Monday morning killed one man and injured another, according to Highway Patrol Trooper Wilbert Myles.

Myles said Karl A. Williams, 23, and Matheny M. Wagner, 24, both from Mobile, Ala. were involved in the accident, which occurred around 6:15 a.m. Monday.

Wagner, who was driving, apparently fell asleep and the car drifted off the left side of road, Myles said. The car then went back onto the highway, crossed it and hit a pine tree on the other side.

Williams was pronounced dead at the scene by Hancock County Medical Examiner Norma Stiglet. Wagner was taken to Hancock Medical Center where he underwent surgery for multiple injuries. Myles said.

JET SKIS RECOVERED

Hancock County Sheriff's Department officials are investigating the June 11 theft of two Jet Skis from the Shoreline Park area.

Investigator Nathan Hoda said the Jet Skis and the trailer transporting them, valued at a total of $9,500, were recovered June 20 after an anonymous telephone call was placed to their owner.

The owner, a Louisiana resident who has a weekend camp at Shoreline Park, met in Slidell with sheriff's department officials and members of the St. Tammany parish sheriff's office to discuss the call, Hoda said.

"We're talking to some people, but we don't have any good suspects yet," he added.

Construction planned at Stennis Air Park

BY LIZ HAAS

The Port and Harbor Commission accepted a recommendation from the Air Port committee on a bid for T-hangars from GM&R, a local contractor at their July 9 meeting.

T-hangars are used to house airplanes. The bid from GM&R was the lowest of six received at $295,180.

The board approved a recommendation for a general obligation bond issue for $450,000 to construct an industrial building for a tenant and to construct 12 T-hangars at Stennis Air Park.

A resolution was approved to allow Tony Kennedy to pay for a 5,000-square-foot industrial building at Stennis Air Park. Kennedy will pay for the cost of the building as advertised at 10 percent for 15 years with the possibility of purchasing.

The resolution called for Kennedy to provide the county commission with a personal endorsement on his life insurance in the amount of the outstanding balance due on the building.

The board approved a request for a proposal made by Cortech Inc. engineering firm to update the master plan of the existing airport facilities and to further the development.

Riding horses prohibited on beach

BY LIZ HAAS

As a result of complaints of horseback riding on the beach, the Bay St. Louis City Council discussed amendments to the animal ordinance at the July 10 meeting.

One amendment discussed pertained to prohibiting livestock, fowl and other animals not covered by the code of ordinances, i.e. the leash law, on public rights-of-way, docks, waterways and beaches.

Another amendment required a livestock permit for parades to be held on any public right-of-way, made by either individuals or groups, to be obtained, subject to the approval of the mayor, at least seven working days prior to said parade.

A section of the ordinance pertaining to animal tags and collars was discussed and it was decided that reference should be made that owners could purchase tags and collars from their veterinarian since the city no longer handles such details.

The amendments discussed will be drawn up and voted on in a future meeting.

The council heard from Max Elrod of Pecan Park who was continuing his complaints about the drainage problem in his subdivision and about the decision Mayor Edward Favre had reached concerning the problem.

In a previous meeting, Favre decided to allow the members of the Pecan Park Subdivision to have culverts installed in their drainage systems. He stated it would be easier for the city to maintain culverts as opposed to open ditches.

Elrod suggested since the city would benefit from that decision, then it is the city's responsibility to shoulder the cost of fulfilling the needs of the entire subdivision.

The matter will be further discussed at the next council meeting, July 17.

Independence Day 'fireworks' occupy law and fire officials

BY TRACI BONNEY

Things are returning to normal for local law enforcement and fire department officials following the July 4 holiday, but not without a few bumps and bruises.

Hancock County Sheriff Ronnie Peterson reported that a bonfire at Clermont Harbor provided some action around midnight on Independence Day when sheriff's department and Clermont Harbor volunteer firefighters decided to extinguish it for safety reasons.

"There was a large number of people gathered on the beach, and we thought things were getting a little out of hand. We were also worried about the fire with everything being so dry, so we decided it needed to be put out."

A scuffle ensued with some of the partiers, Peterson said, and a deputy was forced to tackle one onlooker who was interfering with the officials' efforts.

At some time during the episode, he added, the fire hose was cut.

"We have a warrant for one arrest, and we're investigating the cutting of the hose."

Peterson estimated that 200 to 300 people were gathered at the bonfire. He said two Waveland police units and two sheriff's department units were present, in addition to fire units from Clermont Harbor, Bayside Park, East Hancock and Waveland.

Jim Maness, a commissioner of the Clermont Harbor-Lakeshore Fire Protection District, said a firefighter was hit in the back of the head with a stick while trying to put out the

Thoms: Skateboarding is not just a hobby

BY TRACI BONNEY

He could be taken for a skateboarder himself as he talks to the group of boys gathered outside the Valena C. Jones gym — jeans, muscle shirt, hair a little long and capped with a baseball hat worn backward.

He's Steve Thoms, a Bay St. Louis resident who, along with his wife Clarisse, supervises from 10 to 50 skateboarders every Tuesday and Thursday, and he is a skateboarder.

Thoms rode with a semi-professional team in the Philippines 14 years ago when his father was stationed there in the military. After leaving the sport, he decided to get involved again last December by supervising the skaters who go to the gym each week to practice.

He said he wants to emphasize several things to people about skateboarding. First, he said, it is not banned in Bay St. Louis.

Thoms said he and Don Oco of the Bay St. Louis Police Department have talked about a local law that had been misinterpreted by many to mean that skateboarding was not allowed in the city. The law, Thoms explained, merely forbids obstruction of traffic, be that by a skateboarder, bicyclist or pedestrian. It does not ban skateboarding.

Second, he said, "Skateboarding is a sport. Not

July 4 marked 214 years of freedom

From all reports it would seem that Independence Day was observed with much more than the flying of a flag on July 4, the anniversary of the day on which the Declaration of Independence was adopted by the Continental Congress.

Of course, there were fireworks displays, family gatherings, boating and fishing, racing, picnics, watermelon cuttings, special music, movies and dances. Indeed, it was a day for rejoicing. And it was a hot day, averaging at about 98 or 100 degrees.

July 4, 1776 adds up to 214 precious years of freedom, of independence! John Adams was right when he said: "I believe it will be celebrated by succeeding generations as a great anniversary festival."

The honorable J. H. F. Claiborne made an excellent address, attended by people from miles around. People set aside three days to travel to and from the event. They came in wagons, buggies and on foot to visit with each other and hear the patriotic and informative address of this popular man.

On July 4 in 1898 there was a family reunion that made history. It was a family gathering in the home of Mr. W. M. (Uncle Billy) Smith. Uncle Billy had 28 children. He lived west of Picayune.

Uncle Billy had seven sons and seven daughters by his first wife and seven sons and seven daughters by his second wife.

The Atlantic Constitution published an article about the reunion which said Uncle Billy had lived in Hancock County for 87 years.

Some 21 sons and daughters were present, as well as 106 grandchildren and eight great-grandchildren. For years the Smith family made a tradition of "homecoming on July 4."

On July 4, 1826 Thomas Jefferson died at Monticello. He was the author of the Declaration of Independence. He believed in representative government under a constitution.

KILLING TIME

By Traci Bonney

People-proofing — a sure way to starve

Since when do products need to be people-proofed?

I'm not talking about lunatic-proofing things, as our manufacturers have wisely decided to do with medicines and other such items. I'm talking about making something so difficult to open that it discourages you from even buying it.

Have we become so suspicious of our own shadows that we need food that is unopenable? Or is this some subtle, insidious diet program the food industry has decided to foist on the entire nation?

Come on, folks! When you have to dynamite a bag to get to the potato chips, that's going too far. Or when you become a knife-wielding, wild-eyed maniac simply because that's the only way to handle safety seals.

Why, for instance, do we need to have those little plastic wrapper-things around the edges of pickle jars and other such food items?

I don't know about you, but I generally need a small boulder just to break the vacuum seal that naturally occurs during the packing process. It strikes me as odd that someone would actually subject himself to a struggle with a jar lid just to poison a total stranger, especially when it would include the risk of being caught by store personnel or alert customers.

I don't know; maybe the store owners wanted the food industry to seal, wrap and otherwise booby trap products to keep "nibblers" from eating the stores out of shelf and stockroom.

I'm sure you know what I mean. I can't be the only one who has seen the empty cartons and wrappers that mean a nibbler has been "buffet shopping."

I'm also not the only one paying the higher prices caused by this particular form of shoplifting.

But I digress. What I want to know is — what's next? Fingerprint checks on frozen pizza packages? Retina scans built into peanut butter jars?

A co-worker recently suggested that manufacturers take advantage of the current nostalgia craze to bring back packages that a normal human can actually open without resorting to small arms weaponry or light explosives.

I'm with him. I'm tired of fighting my meals.

Fireworks

The firefighter lost his glasses but is otherwise well, Maness added.

He said that in addition to responding to the bonfire, he and others in his district worked that night to contain a marsh fire near Oak Street.

Around 9 p.m., Maness responded to the call. Upon arriving at the fire, he said, he called for traffic control and radioed a request that other Clermont Harbor firefighters be notified.

Two Clermont Harbor units and two Bayside Park units fought the fire. It took about two hours to contain it, he said.

Maness added that he called the Mississippi Forestry Service, because the fire at one point approached the trees on Oak Street, where the pine needles were approximately one foot thick on the ground.

"Whenever we have a fire involving woods, we call the service," he said, explaining that the forestry service has equipment that is used to cut firebreaks when necessary.

Maness added that he is grateful to the 30 to 40 residents who showed up with shovels and rakes to help fight the marsh fire.

"We really appreciated that. That's the good side of the thing."

Skateboard

only is it recognized as a sport, it is one of the few sports that originated in the United States and has spread worldwide.

Thoms commented that the skateboarders, some of whom come from as far as Gulfport to practice at the gym, don't look at it as a hobby, or a way to kill time.

"These kids are dedicated. They save their milk money, they go without lunch, to save up to get things for their boards."

"When they're skating, if they fall they don't stop and cry about being hurt. They get back on the board and keep going."

He pointed out one youngster with a bandaged hand, and said the boy had fallen on a broken bottle while skating on the street outside the gym.

Brian Fick of Gulfport

"That's one of the big no-nos around here, skating on the street out there. But he was doing it, and he fell and cut his hand."

"And, as you see, he's back, stitches and all."

Another comment he made repeatedly is that skateboarders are not bad kids.

As Thoms talked, several skateboarders stopped practicing and gathered around him. He said, "Just because we look different, wear our hair different and wear different clothes, that doesn't mean we're bad."

The skateboarders agreed, and said the biggest problem they face is harassment from people who aren't willing to accept them. One said he once was told by a minister that he was condemned to hell because Satan was behind his skateboarding.

Thoms said most people don't realize that there are Christians in skateboarding. One professional skateboarder who has held the world skateboard championship, Mike Folmer, is a member of Skaters for Christ, a ministry organization that goes to conventions, rallies and revivals to demonstrate the members' skills and tell people about Jesus.

Thoms said Folmer, who designed the ramps currently being used at the Valena C. Jones gym, recently appeared at Skate Jam at the Mississippi Coast Coliseum. "I'd say 75 percent of the skaters there, and 65 percent of the ones from Hancock County, made a profession of Jesus as Lord at the end of the testimony Folmer gave."

"I don't know how many are following through with it, but they did go down front and make the commitment."

Another myth he wants to shatter is that skateboarders aren't smart. One of the older ones, he said, recently was awarded a scholarship in architectural design.

Thoms finished by saying he'd like to see two things for the skateboarders: more parental involvement, and the return of the two large fans that "disappeared" from the gym.

"That's the only real problem we have here: the heat."

"QUOTABLE QUOTES"

By Ellis C. Cuevas

This is the month for new and renewal memberships in Mobile Medic Ambulance Service.

Each year I renew our membership with Mobile Medic because I know the importance of having the service.

The membership fee, new or renewal, is $42 for a family which includes all unmarried children under 21 who live at home.

One call for the ambulance service within several years more than pays for what it costs a non-member for one call.

Mobile Medic has been in operation for years in Hancock County, and a membership covers the entire uninsured portion of an ambulance bill within the service area.

I am hoping that no family will need Mobile Medic's service during the coming year, but I know this cannot be possible because of accidents and sicknesses.

Every day of the year Mobile Medic Ambulances are busy within Hancock County. Some days they answer quite a few emergency calls.

Membership applications are being printed in advertisements appearing in the Echo this month.

Remember, new memberships or renewals will not be taken until next year after the deadline.

For the youngsters half of the summer vacation is now over, and school bells will be ringing in a little more than a month.

I know many of the students are wondering just where the summer has gone while some parents cannot wait until the summer is over.

The thing which always amazes me is the fact that the older I get, the faster time seems to pass. I know this is all part of human nature, yet it is hard to understand.

There were the days when I was in school having a good time and not realizing it, the bell would never ring for recess or for the end of the day.

Now it seems days pass faster than weeks did when I was a youngster.

Summers were always welcomed as we would flounder at night along the shorelines of Waveland, and in the morning we would try our luck fishing from the seawall.

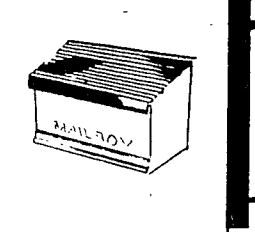

In the fall of the year we would go with our father shrimping from the seawall and catch those jumbo shrimp.

There would be nights when there would be more than a dozen fires on the seawall between Nicholson and Coleman avenues.

The fires were to keep those throwing the nets warm, and on occasion we would toss a small shrimp or crab in the hot coals to roast for a snack.

I know there are still some folks living in the area who can recall those days of growing up in this area.

As youngsters we always had many things to do, some were chores around the house, but we still had many fun times.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Gulfview administrators right in maintaining discipline

To the Editor:

I would like to commend the Gulfview School administration for their enforcement of county school rules regarding destruction of school property by students, even though their actions resulted in the school being picketed on Awards Day.

As a parent who believes in better education, it is rewarding to see school officials who will stand up to disruptive students and their parents in an effort to provide an atmosphere conducive to learning for the students who are at school to obtain an education.

I have had three children at Gulfview School, the last one having completed the seventh grade this year, and believe they have received the best education possible at a public school.

It is appalling that public schools have been forced to lower their standards of education to accommodate the students who lack a desire to learn but spend time disrupting class for those who do.

We, as parents, should stand behind the school officials who are trying to maintain discipline—they are often doing a job that isn't being done at home!

Sincerely,
Annette Moran

Flag burning is protest of way country is run

Dear Editor,

Does the Civil War qualify as "years ago" to Nina Garcia (Letter to the Editor dated July 8)?

The Union flag and the Confederate flag were both burned during the War Between the States.

Flag burning does not necessarily mean that one hates his country. It invariably means that he hates the way his country is being run.

In more recent times Richard Nixon got elected president on his promise to end the Vietnam War. When he reneged on that promise, flag burning demonstrations became commonplace in our streets.

More learned political observers than I give credit to these demonstrators for ending that unpopular war.

Politicians can not always be reached through the ballot box. Sometimes you're left to choose between Tweedledee and Tweedledum. Drastic but legal actions are often necessary to get their attention.

Joint House-Senate revenue committee could help solve education funding problems

Gov. Ray Mabus finds himself much in the same position that Gov. Hugh White was in 35 years ago—a major educational improvement program on the books, but no funding to put it into operation.

Back then White was trying to implement the Minimum Foundation Education program which mandated the first statewide minimum salary schedule for all teachers regardless of race, and launched a massive consolidation and school construction program.

The Minimum Foundation program—which is still today the basic structure for the state public school system—had been written into law in a lengthy special session in 1953, but the Legislature had failed to raise the revenues needed to finance major portions of it.

Again in the 1954 regular session of the Legislature, lawmakers declined to increase taxes to implement the education reforms. Determined to have the new education program fully operational before he left office, White summoned lawmakers into a special session in January, 1955.

But White did something else that was unprecedented for the time, and, in my estimation, should be a prototype of how a governor should work with a Legislature to fund a major new state program.

White created a joint revenue committee, made up of fiscal leaders of both the House and Senate, the presiding officers of each branch, together with himself and one or two members of his staff.

The task of the joint revenue committee was to hammer out a tax package to fund the education program, that would be acceptable not to just one branch of the Legislature, but to both branches.

That's what the joint committee succeeded in doing: It came up with a surtax that was applied to nine different taxes ranging from the income tax to the oil and gas severance tax.

With the leadership of both the House and the Senate behind it, the surtax measure won legislative approval, and even then it was not easy. But the massive new school program was funded.

Of course, White approached the problem by putting all taxes on the table and giving the joint revenue committee a full range of revenue options to consider.

Back three decades ago White and the Legislature were tackling education at a fundamental level, undertaking the first modernization of public education and redressing for the first time the pitiful condition of educational opportunities afforded blacks.

Now, in 1990 Mabus is attempting to build a "world class" educational system by the year 2001 in a bold new three-year education reform package he has labeled "Mississippi's BEST."

Mabus has said that it will virtually require "re-inventing" education. Yet, he says it can be done without raising taxes.

It's now a matter of history that the Legislature spent the last two weeks in June in a special session that refused to pass what Mabus presented lawmakers in non-tax revenue initiatives tied to legalizing a lottery and video card slot machines and assorted fee increases.

The main criticism of Mabus that was heard from legislators in the recent two-week special session was that he dictated the terms of what revenue sources they could consider and refused to put all revenue options, all tax sources, on the table.

Now, in the aftermath of the disastrous special session, Mabus is placing the blame for the failure to fund BEST on the inability of the House and Senate to agree on several of the non-tax revenue measures which he says contained a total of $170.7 million in potential revenue.

Granted, the Mississippi House and Mississippi Senate have not worked well together on taxes for years and they are sharply split on a state lottery, which Mabus has used as a linchpin for funding BEST.

That is all the more reason why Mabus should have arrived at some consensus with leadership of both branches of the Legislature in advance of the special session on what revenue measures had a good chance of passing in each chamber.

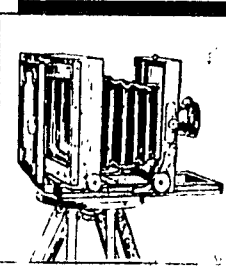

With six months before the next regular legislative session, this seems to be an ideal time for Mabus to take a page from Hugh White's book and create a joint revenue committee to work out a funding plan for BEST that will fly, and not just for one year, either.

But Mabus will apparently have to first agree that everything is on the table.

External shuttle tank added to Space Center's Visitors Center

Special to the Echo

The Visitors Center at NASA's John C. Stennis Space Center, one of the Mississippi Gulf Coast's leading tourist attractions, has added a Space Shuttle external tank to complement its outdoor exhibit area.

The external tank, at 154 feet long and 28 feet in diameter, is the largest element of the Space Shuttle and is the only major non-reusable component.

The tank supplies more than 500,000 gallons of liquid oxygen and liquid hydrogen to the orbiter's three main engines. Stennis Space Center has the responsibility for ground testing all Space Shuttle main engines before actual flight.

The shuttle external tank arrived at Stennis Space Center in April from the Marshall Space Flight Center in Huntsville, Ala., where it had been used as a test tank. Site preparations were then begun outside the Visitors Center for the permanent mounting of the tank.

A special transporter with independent steering at both ends pulled by a prime mover was used for the 1 1/2 hour trip from the storage facility to an area on the north grounds of the Visitors Center.

This special equipment and an experienced crew was brought in from the Michoud Assembly Facility in east New Orleans. Michoud has the responsibility for the design, development, testing and production of the Space Shuttle external tank.

The tank is comprised of a forward liquid oxygen tank, an aft liquid hydrogen tank and a connecting intertank. It is covered by a polyurethane-like foam about one inch thick.

This insulates the propellants keeping them from boiling off and preventing ice from forming on the tank's exterior.

The foam insulation also protects the aluminum skin from the heat of aerodynamic friction during flight which can reach as high as 1,800 degrees.

The external tank supplies the liquid propellants to the orbiter through 17-inch feed-lines and absorbs tremendous thrust loads produced at launch by the orbiter's three main engines and two solid rocket boosters.

The tank empties in about 8 1/2 minutes and then separates from the orbiter, breaks up and falls into a remote ocean area.

The tank to be on display at the Visitors Center is painted white. All tanks had a coat of white paint on them prior to the implementation of weight-reducing measures. The first unpainted tank was used for the STS-3 mission March 22, 1982.

The Space Shuttle external tank is the latest addition to the exhibits currently on display outside the Visitors Center. Late last month, a scale model of the Saturn V rocket was erected.

This rocket—the only one of its kind—had been part of the outdoor exhibit area until it was partially destroyed by a tornado in 1985. It is the actual wind tunnel version that was used to test the wind velocity that could be withstood by the spacecraft during launch.

The Saturn V took America's astronauts to the moon, safely transporting them thousands of miles by a space vehicle with engines tested and proven flight worthy by Stennis Space Center.

Other outdoor exhibits at SSC's Visitors Center include a 68-foot Jupiter-C rocket, sister ship to the vehicle that carried America's first satellite into orbit, and an F-1 engine that powered the Saturn V rocket.

Stennis Space Center's Visitors Center is open every day, except Christmas Day, from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. There is no admission charge. For more information, contact the Visitors Center at (601) 688-2370.

Tax Assessor/Collector Eddie Murtagh is known for his gentility, politeness — and one-liners.

At the July 29 board of supervisors meeting, Murtagh facetiously requested carpeting, wallpaper, upholstered furniture and three crystal chandeliers for the tax assessor's office, "so the taxpayers won't have to ask why their taxes are so high."

Board president Ronnie Cuevas told Murtagh, "I thought you were going to ask for crystal balls so you could make your assessments."

Murtagh didn't let the matter rest. At the July 2 meeting, he said he wished to clarify a statement made at the previous meeting. "We don't use crystal balls to make our assessments," he explained. "We use a dartboard."

Rice offers low cost, low fat diet alternative

Man has been enjoying rice since the very early days of history. Archaeological evidence shows rice was one of the major cereals gathered by prehistoric man.

The history of rice in North America began with colonization of the fertile Carolinas. The cultivation of rice in the Carolinas was not fully successful until 1696 when an improved rice variety was developed.

In order to feed the immigrants who came to California as a result of the 1849 discovery of gold, California began its own rice production. California has continued to be one of our leading rice producing states along with Mississippi, Arkansas, Florida, Louisiana, Missouri and Texas.

There are many different varieties of rice throughout the world, but only a few are suitable to be grown in the United States. These types are long grain, medium grain and short grain.

Long grain rice is 4 to 5 times as long as it is wide. After it is cooked the grains separate and are light and fluffy. Mississippi mostly has long grain rice.

Medium grain rice is plump. When cooked, the grains are more moist and tender than long grain rice.

Short grain rice is almost round and will cling together when cooked.

Today stores are packed with rice products that add to the ease and convenience of this popular item. Rice is such a versatile item and makes a wonderful accompaniment for so many food items.

Rice also is important for its nutritional value. For the person watching their weight, rice is an excellent choice with one-half cup of cooked rice having only 82 calories.

Rice is a good supply of the complex carbohydrates that are important for everyone's diet. Rice also contains only a trace of fat. Rice is a grain cereal that costs an average of four cents per half serving. These are just some of the nutritional attributes of rice.

White, parboiled or precooked rice will keep for an unlimited time without refrigeration. After a package of rice has been opened, however, it should be stored in an airtight container.

Brown rice, because of the oil in its layers, has a shelf life of six months and it is recommended that brown rice be stored in the freezer or refrigerator. Cooked rice may be stored in the refrigerator for up to one week or in the freezer for six months.

When preparing rice follow package instructions. If they are not available the following chart may serve as a guide:

HOW TO PREPARE RICE

Combine 1 cup rice, liquid (see chart), 1 teaspoon salt (optional), and 1 tablespoon butter or margarine (optional) in 2- or 3-quart saucepan. Heat to boiling stir once or twice. Lower heat to simmer; cover with tight-fitting lid. Cook according to time specified on chart. If rice is not quite tender or liquid is not absorbed, replace lid and cook 2 to 4 minutes longer. Fluff with fork.

1 Cup Uncooked Rice	Liquid	Cooking Time
Regular-milled long grain	1 1/4 to 2 cups	15 min.
Regular-milled medium or short grain	1 1/2 cups	15 min.
Brown	2 to 2 1/2 cups	45 to 50 min.
Parboiled	2 to 2 1/2 cups	20 to 25 min.
Precooked, follow package directions
Flavored or seasoned mixes, follow package directions

Microwave Oven Instructions

Combine 1 cup rice, liquid (see chart), 1 teaspoon salt (optional), and 1 tablespoon butter or margarine (optional) in 2- or 3-quart deep microproof baking dish. Cover and cook on HIGH (maximum power) 5 minutes or until boiling. Reduce setting to MEDIUM (50% power) and cook, 15 minutes (20 minutes for parboiled rice and 30 minutes for brown rice). Fluff with fork.

SUMMER SEAFOOD SALAD

2 cups rice, cooled to room temperature
1/2 pound cooked crab meat
1 can (8 ounces) sliced water chestnuts, drained
1/2 cup sliced celery
1/4 cup sliced green onions, including tops
1/4 cup each yogurt and dairy sour cream
1 tablespoon fresh lemon juice
1/4 teaspoon hot pepper sauce
1/4 teaspoon salt
Lettuce leaves
Tomato wedges for garnish

Combine rice, crab meat, water chestnuts, celery and onions in large mixing bowl. Combine yogurt, sour cream, lemon juice and seasonings in small bowl; blend well. Pour over rice mixture; toss lightly. Serve on lettuce leaves and garnish with tomato wedges. Makes 4 servings.

COOKING UP A STORM

By Katy McGuire Caire

A delightful and excellent cookbook which will truly "carry you back to Old Virginia" is "Virginia Seasons—New Recipes From the Old Dominion," compiled by members of the Junior League of Richmond, Va. (Winner Brothers, Memphis and Dallas, Publishers, $16.95.)

In addition to the "cream of the crop" of old family recipes, made more or less modern for today's tastes, "Virginia Seasons" brings us more than 40 recipes from historic and renowned resorts, inns and restaurants of the Old Dominion.

Good food, of course, has figured prominently in the history and traditions of Virginia ever since Captain John Smith landed on her coast in 1607. Southern hospitality is synonymous with party food, and there's party food aplenty in this cookbook, from tasty appetizers to super-special desserts! There are Ham Biscuits, made, of course, with the deservedly-famous Smithfield ham, along with Virginia Peanut Soup, standard item on many menus. And, let's not pass by the hot breads or the many delicious "side dishes" also.

With its emphasis on fresh local produce, and with larger than usual sections on vegetables, salads, poultry and seafood—the sine qua non of light but tasty meals—"Virginia Seasons" reflects the growing interest in lighter and lower-calorie meals, while preserving the interest in traditional cuisine.

And, since Southern desserts are famous, and Chess Pie is a famous old Southern dessert, here's a recipe which combines the traditional Chess Pie with another Southern favorite, Pecan Pie, in a richer than rich culinary treat:

(This recipe is from the Tides Lodge, a waterfront resort which with its sister, the Tides Inn, straddles a picturesque creek off the Rappahannock River just a few miles from Chesapeake Bay.)

4 heaping Tbsp. cocoa
1 1/2 cups sugar
2 eggs, beaten
1/2 cup pecans, chopped
1/4 cup butter, melted
1/2 cup unsweetened evaporated milk
1/2 cup coconut
1 pie shell (9-inch) unbaked
Vanilla ice cream or whipped cream.

Preheat oven to 400 degrees. Mix ingredients and pour into unbaked pie shell. Bake for 30 minutes, then cool. Serve with a scoop of vanilla ice cream or whipped cream.

A companion piece to this Old Dominion Cookbook is "Virginia's Historic Restaurants and Their Recipes" by Dawn O'Brien (John F. Blair, Publishers, Winston-Salem, N.C.) which covers more than 50 historic restaurants and 150 of their famous offerings. Replete with historic vignettes, this cookbook and restaurant guide also celebrates the Virginia favorites of Peanut Soup, Spoon Bread, and so forth.

And, from the sister state of North Carolina, comes the just-released "Stirring Performances"—a special blend of traditional and contemporary recipes, compiled by another group of Junior Leaguers, this one of Winston-Salem, N.C.

Winston-Salem has been nationally acclaimed for its cultural programs over the years, and I can assure you that this is still another "stirring performance," this time in the form of a cookbook! It's a collection of 500 or so recipes from League members and restaurants, and honors those artists and organizations who provide the stirring performances which enhance the quality of life in Winston-Salem. The book blends contemporary cuisine and Southern hospitality with up-to-date changes, so that you may stir up your own great creations as you with.

And, from elegant dinners to casual picnics, the recipes are worthy of "standing ovations," if you'll pardon the all-too-obvious pun!

And, since I'm on a "sweets recipe" trek just now, let's have another variation of the South's Chess Pie, (traditionally a lemon and sugar syrup baked in a light crust) and, instead of Chocolate Chess Pie, let's have:

CHOCOLATE CHESS SQUARES

1/2 cup butter, softened

Filling
1 1/2 cups sugar
3 Tbsp. cocoa
1/4 cup butter, melted
2 eggs, beaten
1/3 tsp. salt
1 can (5.3 oz.) evaporated milk
1 tsp. vanilla
1/2 to 3/4 cup chopped pecans, optional

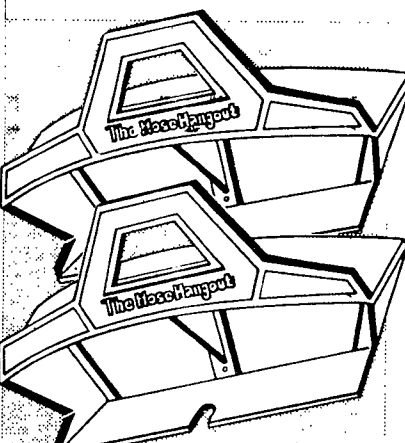

Preheat the oven to 350 degrees. Combine in a bowl the flour and sugar, and cut the half-cup of butter into the mixture until crumbly, then pat the mixture in the bottom of an 8-inch square pan. Bake for 12 to 15 minutes or until slightly browned.

In a mixing bowl, mix together the sugar, cocoa, and butter. Add the eggs and beat for 2 1/2 minutes. Add salt, milk and vanilla, and beat to combine. Stir in pecans if desired. Pour the filling over the prepared base and bake for 35 to 45 minutes or until set. Cut into 1-inch squares while still warm. (24 to 36 pieces)

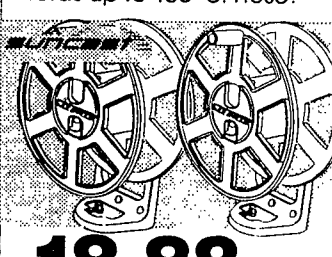

And, for a companion piece to this delightful book there's Dawn O'Brien's companion-restaurant book, "North Carolina's Historic Restaurants and Their Recipes" also from John F. Blair, Publishers, with its wide variety of culinary delights from more than 150 restaurants in the state—from charming island to mountain places, and with brief historical sketches and pen-and-ink drawings enhancing the text. Artigues signs with Belhaven

When an athlete is motivated by a desire to excel in a sport, good things usually happen.

For Jay Artigues, hard work and constant practice on his baseball skills have paid good dividends.

Artigues' latest quest is a baseball scholarship to Belhaven College in Jackson.

During the previous two seasons at Pearl River Community College, Artigues hit .414 as a freshman and .418 as a sophomore to help lead the Wildcats into the state and regional playoffs both years.

Combine these averages with a .538 record-breaking season average at St. Stanislaus High School, and Artigues' statistics become even more impressive.

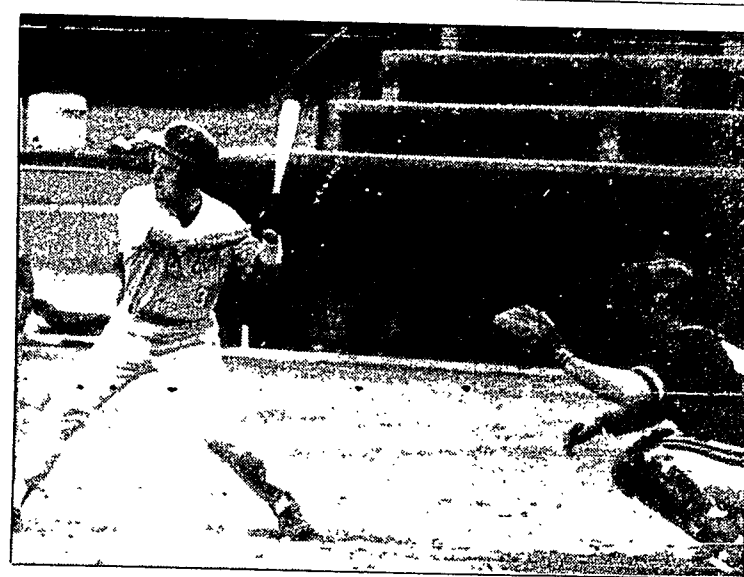

Belhaven baseball coach Skip Blythe followed Artigues throughout his collegiate career and offered him the possibility of more playing time than at a larger school such as Mississippi State.

Blythe, who coached at South Alabama and Memphis State, is in his second year at Belhaven. The college will play a 60-game schedule including bigger schools such as Mississippi State, Memphis State, South Alabama, and Louisiana Tech.

A native of Bay St. Louis, Artigues has never been far away from a baseball. With the assistance and guidance of his father, Ronnie, Jay has spent many hours polishing his hitting skills off the pitching machine set up in his backyard at home.

Presently he is coaching the Bay St. Louis Babe Ruth All-Star team which begins tournament play July 11.

If past performance is any indication of what will happen in the future, Jay Artigues should have a lot to look forward to in the years to come.

On Thursday night, Inkol 16-under lost at the buzzer to Northwest Rankin, 35-33. Inkol scoring was led by Kendall Daniels with 10 points.

Game two was won by forfeit.

In the 16-under consolation finals on Saturday, Inkol lost to Mendenhall, 65-55.

Inkol was led by Erik Yock, 13 points; Gene Moran, 11 points; Derek Inkol, 11 points; and Grady Thigpen, 10 points.

In 18-under action on Thursday night, Inkol lost to Northwest Rankin, 63-46. Inkol was led by Brandon Smith with 12 points.

In Friday action, Inkol defeated Florence, 41-34. Inkol was led by Ken Booker with 13 points.

On Saturday, Inkol overcame a 14-point deficit to defeat Columbia, 56-54. Inkol was led by Brandon Smith with 12 points and Trent Terrell with 10 points.

In the consolation finals Saturday afternoon, Inkol lost to Picayune Hardwood, 57-51. Inkol was led by Brandon Smith with 18 points and Ken Booker with 13 points.

"The players really showed a lot of initiative the last two weeks playing experienced teams and battle back for some big wins," said Coach Chuck Genin.

"Coach Genin and I would like to thank all the players for their hard work and dedication this summer," said Coach Jay Ladner.

Wm. Carey signs Micah Necaise

BY TRACI BONNEY

Everett Michael "Micah" Necaise Jr., a recent graduate of Bay High School, received a basketball scholarship from William Carey College last week as he signed on with Coach Steve Knight's Crusaders.

Necaise is the son of Hancock County chancery clerk Mike Necaise, who in his high school and college days played so well at Bay High and William Carey that his jerseys were retired. At William Carey, the elder Necaise set several records that still stand, including most career points, most field goals in one game and best single-season scoring average.

Knight stressed, however, that he was recruiting the younger Necaise because of his own ability.

Knight said that in addition to being intelligent, Necaise is a solid basketball player.

"I'm looking for some folks who can put the ball in the basket, he's one of them."

Micah's father is understandably proud of his son.

Necaise said, "I am very pleased for Micah. It (getting a scholarship) is a goal he has set for himself and attained."

"I've told him that athletics is a vehicle to get his education."

I'm proud of him and I think he has a good future ahead of him."

Micah excels in both athletic and academic abilities, maintaining a 3.60 grade point average while being involved in athletic and community activities.

His athletic awards include: freshman year — most valuable player and all-district player; sophomore year — most valuable player and most dedicated player; junior year — all-tournament player; senior year — all-tournament player and all-district player. He also earned accolades as best offensive player at Pearl River College's basketball camp and best defensive player at Ole Miss's camp.

His academic honors include:

alpha honor roll, Boys' State delegate, Scholar Athlete or Mississippi runner-up, National History and Government Award, Milky Way/Mars High School All-American Student Award (he was one of two chosen from Mississippi), Senior of the Year award, Army Scholar Athlete and American Legion Award.

Ones that didn't get away

He hasn't had much luck hooking sharks, but stingrays and jackfish — that's another story. In the right photo, 15-year-old Brian Gagnon of Bay St. Louis, right, displays the 110 pound stingray that reeled in a tackle box for Largest Fish of the Day Sunday at the 42nd Annual Deep Sea Fishing Rodeo in Gulfport, while nine-year-old brother Jonathan watches. In the left photo, Jonathan helps Brian show off the three jackfish, weighing 32, 27 and 25 pounds, that Brian caught about two weeks ago. The jacks and the ray were all landed in the Cat Island channel while Brian was fishing for sharks.

Former basketball standout excels in wheelchair games

From staff reports

On July 23, 1989, Kris Geroux was driving home one night on I-10 near the Diamondhead exit when he spotted a deer in the road. Swerving to avoid the deer, Geroux's car tumbled off the Interstate and flipped over several times. Geroux's neck was broken and he was paralyzed from the waist down.

A six-month hospital stay and intense rehabilitation slowly helped the former high school and junior college basketball player to relearn upper body motor skills which most people take for granted.

Two weeks ago, Kris Geroux and 541 other wheelchair veterans participated in the 10th National Veterans Wheelchair Games, a four-day event held at Tulane University in New Orleans.

In his division, Geroux won three gold medals and one bronze medal. His gold medals were in the javelin, discus and basketball events. His bronze medal was won in bowling.

"We were allowed to enter only five events, so I guess I did pretty good," Geroux said modestly.

"The games were well-organized, and I had a lot of fun. They paid for our rooms the entire week.

DETERMINED—Kris Geroux, center, receives several awards from Scott McLain of United Parcel Service, left, and New Orleans Saint Archie Manning at the recent 10th National Veterans Wheelchair Games.

"Next year they want to send me to compete in the games which will be held in Miami. They also want me send me to the winter games to learn sit-down skiing," he said.

Before the accident, Geroux played two years of high school basketball at St. Stanislaus and continued his athletic career at Pearl River

Community College.

He then entered the Air Force and took courses in computer maintenance at Keesler Air Force Base.

"I really didn't get too depressed after the accident. There were a lot of people visiting me in the hospital. I was just trying to take it one day at a time.

"At first I had a 'halo' in my head, which is a device with all those lead weights. I was then sent to Memphis for physical therapy and general exercises to strengthen my upper body.

"I also took driver training. I feel that I can do everything but walk."

Geroux's future plans include going back to school in the fall at either the University of Southern Mississippi or Jeff Davis Community College.

FLYING—Kris Geroux jumps for a shot during a St. Stanislaus game. He played on the St. Stanislaus team for two years during his high school career.

Gimme a V

The Bay High junior varsity cheerleaders recently participated in the Elite Cheerleading Association camp at Perkinson Community College, where they won several awards.

Those awards included first place for best squad, dance and overall, first runnerup in chant and cheer, a superior blue ribbon for each day of the camp and five spirit sticks.

The two were among five chosen for the All-Star squad from the junior varsity level. They were chosen on overall cheerleading ability.

A special camp

Civitan Camp for mentally retarded hosted annually at Camp Iti Kana

Special to the Echo
Nowhere do the often quoted "thousand points of light" shine more brightly than here in South Mississippi at the annual Civitan Camp for Citizens with Mental Retardation.

Bringing summer days of fun and leisure to scores of Mississippians, this camp, which is unique across the country, owes its success to the members of The Civitan Club, hundreds of volunteers, and a remarkable lady named Abbie Rogers, who founded the camp and has served as its director for the past 28 years.

There are camps for citizens with mental retardation in other states, but this camp, which is held annually at the Girl Scouts' Camp Iti Kana, between Hattiesburg and Wiggins, is unique in three ways. It accepts campers at all functioning levels of retardation, it offers a broader variety of outdoor sports and camping activities, and those who cannot afford to pay the nominal $85 fee, attend the week long camp free of charge. Some camps around the country have fees in excess of $1,000.

Because the work is done by volunteers and because the business community donates a major portion of the goods and services, the actual cost per person at Civitan Camp is $170, and most of that cost is covered by the year-round fund-raising efforts of the Civitan Club and the generosity of some Hattiesburg business men.

The camp, which is held for two weeks every July, consists of two sessions. Session I, which begins July 23, is for youth under the age of 18 and includes a respite camp for individuals with handicaps requiring specialized care and less structured activities.

The youth camp will include swimming, baseball, volleyball, tumbling, group games, canoeing, music, horseback riding, camp-fire singing, movies and other entertainment. And, this summer there will be new playground equipment, donated and installed by the Telephone Pioneers.

In addition to trained staff members who supervise and direct the various activities, during youth week each camper has a counselor with him in a one-on-one relationship for the camping week.

Session II, which begins July 30 is in effect an adult camping vacation for citizens with mental retardation. In addition to all the outdoor camping and sports activities listed above the adults will also have facilities for hobbies, arts and crafts.

As adults, they may choose each day the activities that they would like to participate in. In order to organize and be prepared for the daily changes and choices of 100 adult campers, this year the "activity by choice" will be made possible through the hi-tech operation of a com-

Abbie Rogers and her assistant directors, Becky Wilson and Terri Shuck, are quick to proclaim that the real heroes are the many volunteers who give of themselves every year. It will take about 200 volunteers to make this experience possible for the nearly 200 campers who come from every county in south Mississippi and range in age from 16 months to 67 years.

There is a director for each activity who makes plans during the year, secures and prepares all the necessary materials and assists and supervises the campers in that activity. There are those who plan, prepare and execute a different theme party every night for the adult campers.

At dinner on the first night of camp there will be a giant birthday party with 200 birthday cakes, one to celebrate the birthday of every camper and counselor. Then there will be singing and bingo.

One night there will be a Mardi Gras celebration with a real Mardi Gras parade led by a half dozen golf carts decorated as floats and costumed revelers.

Each night will include a dinner which carries out the theme of the occasion. The dinners are planned and cooked by a volunteer from New Orleans who comes every year and brings specially prepared dishes and two or three of her friends. They spend the week in the kitchen serving up a different surprise every night. One night they get a special assist from the Forrest County Board of Supervisors with a catfish fry.

Local doctors volunteer to stay at the camp each night to handle any medical emergencies that might occur since the camp is so far from a hospital or emergency room.

Most of these doctors started in their teens as counselors, as did many of the business men who serve as night patrolers, staying up all night to assure the safety of the campers, the counselors and the staff.

Looking out for both counselors and campers, are the area mothers, to do all those things that teenagers expect from mothers, everything from giving a hug to enforcing the curfew.

Never to be forgotten are all those teen-age counselors who give part of their summer and themselves to be the friend and constant companion of a camper.

For inquiries regarding The Civitan Camp for Citizens with Mental Retardation, contact Abbie Rogers, Route 10, Box 2 Bob White Trail, Hattiesburg, MS 39401, 264-6369.

Nursing scholarship established at USM

An endowed scholarship has been established in the memory of Dr. Arline Williams, late faculty member in the University of Southern Mississippi Gulf Coast School of Nursing.

Mrs. Williams' widow, John Williams of Pass Christian, a native of Wayne County, established the scholarship with an initial $5,000 contribution to the USM Foundation. Bill Pace, director of the university's Office of Development, said interest from investment of the gift will fund the scholarship annually.

The initial scholarship award will be presented in the fall of 1991. It will go to a Gulf Coast nursing student recommended by a faculty committee.

A New York City native, Mrs. Williams served as an assistant professor in the Gulf Coast School of Nursing from August of 1981 until her retirement in May of 1988. Previously a nursing instructor at Gulf Coast Junior College's Jackson County campus, she died earlier this year.

Mrs. Williams was educated at Hartwick College in New York, where she received a bachelor's degree in 1949; George Williams College in Illinois, where she received a master's degree in 1970; and the University of Denver, where she obtained a doctorate in 1982.

Persons wishing to contribute to the scholarship fund may contact the USM Foundation by writing Southern Station Box 10026, Hattiesburg, Miss., 39406, or by calling (601) 266-5602.

New Orleans Museum of Art features 'The Mad Potter of Biloxi'

The beauty, genius and whimsy of the pottery of George E. Ohr, who called himself "The Mad Potter of Biloxi," can be seen in the exhibition "George Ohr: Modern Potter (1857-1918)," at the New Orleans Museum of Art now through Aug. 12.

Featured in this unique exhibition are 82 works by the artist who, despite never having enjoyed favorable attention during his lifetime, is now regarded as the consummate American potter who has contributed prodigiously to the mainstream of 20th-century art.

The exhibition was organized by the American Craft Museum, New York, and is funded in part by the National Endowment for the Arts, the New York State Council on the Arts, and Mr. and Mrs. Thomas C. Dillenborg.

George Ohr innately sensed the importance of his work and craved international acclaim and public acceptance. When such recognition was withheld, Ohr set about creating it with bold advertisements claiming himself as the "Unequaled—Unrivaled—Undisputed—Greatest—Art Potter on Earth."

Not satisfied with that, he demanded that the beholder prove statements to the contrary. Also, in tandem with the humorous rebellion of his ceramics, Ohr cast himself as "The Mad Potter of Biloxi," and, to attract the public, capitalized on his outlandish appearance and foot-long mustache.

John Keefe, NOMA curator of decorative arts, notes, however, that with Ohr's braggadocio aside, it was the artist's work which, given the opportunity, finally spoke for itself. Pursuing the "aesthetic of risk" and the "cultivation of accident," Ohr then twisted, counter-twisted, indented, crimped and punched clay walls until pieces with a vivid sculptural sense emerged.

"This complex work which possessed such energy was achieved with the illusion of no effort," said Keefe, adding, "It was nothing short of astonishing."

This turn-of-the-century wheelwork, critics agree, was not even attempted again until the 1950s; and ceramic and art historians concur that Ohr brought American pottery to a level that matched and surpassed the most avant-garde contemporaneous achievements in Europe.

George Ohr was born in Biloxi in 1857, to an Alsatian blacksmith and his German wife. As a young man, he assisted in his father's blacksmith shop and worked at a number of other trades before discovering ceramics.

At 22, he was offered an apprenticeship by a potter who was a family friend. While he had virtually no formal education, he traveled widely for two years, seizing up potters in 16 states.

In 1883, following brief employment at the Newcomb College Pottery in New Orleans, he established his own studio in Biloxi, where after producing traditional, utilitarian pottery, he began to experiment by twisting and ruffling thin-walled vessels into striking new forms.

Although Ohr kept his Biloxi studio operating through the sale of lesser-molded ware and souvenir items, he refused to sell his more outlandish "mud babies" for anything but exorbitant prices, thereby establishing to his satisfaction that the purchaser was committed to the excellence of the piece.

Unfortunately, recognized critics of the day saw Ohr's innovations as a kind of creativity gone awry. Disappointed, Ohr gave up pottery around 1910 and his studio was transformed into an automobile garage where he worked with his sons until his death in 1918.

In 1968, James Carpenter, an antiques dealer seeking vintage cars, had heard of the Ohr sons' garage and repair shop and investigated the possibility of acquiring a period car. What he discovered instead were the nearly 7,000 pieces of pottery lovingly hoarded by George Ohr and his family. After four years of negotiation, Carpenter acquired the collection and offered it for sale in New Jersey.

The sudden revelations of Ohr's work and its availability took the world of ceramics collectors and its dealers by storm and this long-neglected and undervalued American art potter became a cult figure. His extraordinary work appealed to all types, and to avant-garde artists particularly.

Today, Ohr's work is sought on an international scale at ever-rising prices, with museums and private collectors vying with equal intensity for the best of his work.

"In the end," said Keefe, "Ohr's 'mud babies' have spoken for themselves, and his outrageous persona is intact, both of which factors would have delighted their creator."

The exhibition is accompanied by a lavishly illustrated publication, "The Mad Potter of Biloxi, the Art and Life of George E. Ohr." The catalogue, available in the Museum shop, features essays by prominent Ohr scholars Garth Clark, Robert A. Ellison Jr. and E. Hecht.

Opening simultaneously at NOMA, and running concurrently with "George Ohr: Modern Potter (1857-1918)," will be a complimentary exhibition entitled "George Ohr from New Orleans Collections."

Guest curator of the exhibition is New Orleans artist and Ohr collector George Febres. While including a number of Ohr's fine art pieces, the show emphasizes the utilitarian ware made for sale to tourists in Biloxi—pitchers, pots, bird feeders and whimsies, both glazed and unglazed.

Of special interest will be a display of Ohr's original molds for such utilitarian pieces, from the Tannen-Nathan Collection, with new casts made especially for the show by contemporary New Orleans potter John Hodge.

For more information call the New Orleans Museum of Art at 504-488-2631.

Simmons paintings featured

Paintings by Paul Vernon Simmons of Biloxi will be featured during July and August at Gulf Coast Research Laboratory's J. L. Scott Marine Education Center in Biloxi.

The display is part of a continuing exhibit of environmental, marine and aquatic artwork at the center which is open from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. daily except Sunday.

Admission is $3 for adults, $2 for senior citizens, $1.50 for young people three to 17 and free for children under three years old.

Individualized training at PRC center will assist laid-off ammo plant employees

Special to the Echo

For 32 unemployed Mississippi Army Ammunition Plant workers, the first step to employment is with the Pearl River Community College training center in Picayune.

Funding for the program came from the Mississippi Department of Economic and Community Development, through the Mississippi Service Delivery Area; the Gulf Coast Business Service Corporation; and the First Planning District Consortium of Louisiana.

With the help of these three entities, Pearl River College has implemented a unique educational process.

Adhering to the rules and regulations, consistent with the provisions of the Job Training Partnership Act (JTPA), Pearl River has set up the Picayune center to assist the laid-off worker of today for area jobs of tomorrow.

The hub of the center is a 60-unit computer lab with the necessary software to assess the unemployed MSAAP worker. The lab has the capability to upgrade their basic and technical skills.

"The needs of the dislocated workers are many and varied," said Dr. James Sones, dean of vocational-technical education at Pearl River College.

Dr. Sones said the first thing the college did when the first students entered the program last week was to administer a comprehensive diagnostic test and item analysis.

"We needed to determine the needs and individualized instruction for each student," said Dr. Sones. "The student will work only on the competencies he or she needs to learn. Each student will pace himself as he learns."

There are some participants whose basic skills in reading and math may not be adequate for successful enrollment in the proposed training programs and these needs must be addressed before the student moves on.

Dr. Sones said instructional needs will center around strategies for word recognition, vocabulary development and comprehension for reading. Math instruction will emphasize algorithm and concept development.

Sometimes in the future, high school drop-outs and those needing the GED will receive skills in analytical reading, math computation and problem solving, writing mechanics, English usage and spelling improvement.

Simply put, one of the largest areas of need among the dislocated workers will be individualized attention.

Dr. Sones said many have completed the GED and other college entrance requirements, but they have been in the workforce for a number of years.

"These individuals discover, after beginning the basic skills program, it is difficult to keep pace due to many reasons," said Dr. Sones.

These older students have been out of a school setting for many years and they have financial, child care and family obligations.

"Our instructional needs are as varied as the programs in which participants are involved," said Dr. Sones.

Through a survey of local industries, potential employment needs for the next three to five years have been identified for NASA and the South Mississippi and New Orleans area.

For example, most participants may have trouble in those programs that require technical papers or technical reports. Instruction is needed in sentence and paragraph construction, outlining and spelling improvement.

Instruction is also needed in time management, note taking, test taking, memory training, using the library and motivational skills.

After a four to six-week training period in basic skills, the participant will be administered a post-test to assess progress. If the student has successfully completed objectives and obtained the required percentage score an exploration process will begin.

"When the student is ready we will start a process to determine which training program would best be suited for the individual," said Dr. Sones.

After the technical learning lab program the participant will have the option of seeking employment or enrolling in one of the four training programs offered at the Picayune center.

The electronic technician program is designed to produce a technician who is capable of working with engineers, scientists and production personnel in a working environment dealing with direct and alternating current.

The cryogenics technician program is designed to provide the basic skills needed to work with the extremely low temperatures required for the handling of liquid hydrogen and oxygen as a fuel for the advanced rocket motors to be developed at NASA.

Students entering the computer control technician program will learn the basic skills necessary to operate various valves, pumps, motors and switches as related to the rocket engine test stands to be used by NASA to develop new engines and components.

The quality control technician program is designed to prepare workers to operate a total quality control program for business and industry.

The skills learned will include measurement, statistical computer models and communications are related to today's business and industry needs, to insure the production of a quality product.

Other JTPA programs are computer-aided draftsman and commercial truck driving offered at PRC's main campus in Poplarville and clerical-cluster, commercial truck driving and operating room technician at the Forrest County Center in Hattiesburg.

After the student has been placed in a training program and the student and instructor feel more basic skills are needed, that option will be afforded the student.

The student can be participating in a basic skills activity that is complimentary or directly related to his training program.

Pearl River College will keep written records for each student and will assist each participant in obtaining unsubsidized employment in accordance with guidelines set forth in agreement with the Mississippi Employment Security Commission.

The program will operate 30 hours per week, according to JTPA guidelines.
